REGAIN CONTROL OF SHOLAPUR ON HEELS OF BLOODY TROUBLE

Mete Out Sentences To Leaders Of Indian
Revolt

LONDON, May 13.—British troops regained control of Sholapur, important textile center 250 miles southeast of Bombay, today after rioting Indian Nationalists had ruled the city for several hours according to dispatches received by the London evening newspapers.

Martial law was proclaimed throughout the city, the dispatches said.

Traders, fearing the looting of their shops, remained indoors and refused to open up while the disorderly crowds milled through the principal streets.

Urgent calls for assistance had been sent out and at the behest of the district magistrate, a full battalion of the Royal Ulster Rifles was sent from Poona by special train.

Sholapur, an important center of the textile industry with a population of approximately 250,000, was the scene of bloody riots last Wednesday and Thursday. Official reports said five were killed and fifty wounded. Unofficial reports placed the number of dead at more than 400 injured. Refugees told of seeing several policemen bound together and roasted alive.

Later dispatches received here indicated that the situation at Sholapur was expected to be relieved

BOOZE VALUED AT $100,000 CONFISCATED

Whiskey Bound For Capones Seized By Dry Agents

CHICAGO, May 13.—Federal prohibition agents today were in possession of a freight carload of whiskey valued at $100,000 which was intercepted yesterday as it was about to be delivered to the Capone syndicate here.

Seizure of shipment, which had originally been sent from the Capone headquarters in Florida, has led prohibition authorities to search for three other carloads which are believed to be awaiting delivery here.

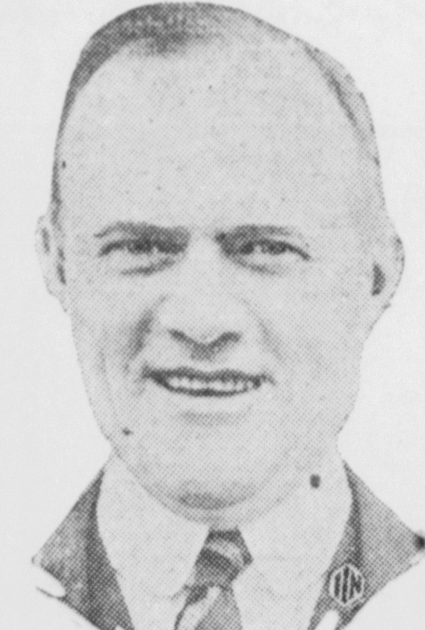

The whiskey had been re-routed several times and was camouflaged as a shipment of lumber to avert suspicion. Tracing the car's route, federal agents learned that it had been manufactured in the United States, was sent to Canada and re-exported to Jacksonville, Fla., where it was loaded on the freight car marked "lumber."

GUARDSMEN PLAN TO PUT RIFLE RANGES WITHIN PEN WALLS

To Practice Shooting;
Check Of Convicts
Continues

COLUMBUS, O., May 12.—The Ohio State Penitentiary walls, which during the past few weeks, have re-echoed the horrible cries of dying convicts, the roar of life-devastating flames, and the sharp cracks of the guns of penitentiary guards and the militia, will soon resound with the continuous rattling of machine gun and steady rifle fire.

But before, where the shots spelled tragedy, death and suffering, they will now mean that Ohio National Guardsmen are simply practicing marksmanship.

According to Colonel Robert Haubrich, in command of the troops at the big state prison, an army rifle and machine gun range will be erected within the walls of the prison. Guardsmen on duty will be given practice.

Erection of the range gave rise to reports that the troops will be kept at the prison for some time to come. Colonel Robert Haubrich refused to say how long the soldiers will be posted at the penal institution, except to reiterate his statement that "they will be kept here as long as necessary."

Guardsmen, who, Sunday afternoon, started an official check of the convicts within the prison, were far from completion of their task today as they were at that time.

Repairs on the G and H cell-block, where 320 convicts perished in Easter Monday night's fire, caused the removal of the prisoners which had since been confined there in the lower ranges. The convicts were locked in repaired cells of "White City" cellblock, and the count became so muddled that the guardsmen were forced to start over again.

ESCAPED CONVICTS HELD FOR THEFTS

CLEVELAND, O., May 13.—Two men, who were arrested here as suspected jewelry thieves, have been identified as fugitives from Dannemora and Sing Sing prisons in New York, police said today.

The men are booked as William Shaw, 30, and James Holmes, 29. They are being held for New York authorities, according to police.

The pair was arrested two weeks ago when jewelry, valued at $2,000 was found in their room here, police said.

SUES FOR SALARY

SLAYER REMORSEFUL FOLLOWING ARREST ON MURDER CHARGE

Confesses To Killing
Friend; Asks For Execution

WOODSFIELD, O., May 13.—"My God, did I kill him!" "I want to be executed! I want my life to pay for his! He was one of my best friends!"

"I don't know why I did it. I must have been drunk!" Stricken with remorse over the death of Ray Tisher, aged 24, Hannibal resident, whom he shot and killed, Roscoe Suter, 32-year-old World War veteran, sobbed those words out to police today.

Police said that Suter had been drinking, and the man later admitted that he had some "moonshine stuff."

When first taken into custody, Suter asked:
"How bad is Ray hurt?"
A deputy sheriff told Suter that Tisher was dead.

"I ought not to have asked," the hill-man replied, "I never miss what I shoot at."

The typical "hill-billy" murder occurred at Hannibal, a small Monroe County riverfront town, near here, today.

Suter, who fled after the shooting, was captured by deputy sheriffs a short time later while hiding in a wash-house in a secluded woods near a shack which was occupied by Suter and his friend, Frank N. Boettly, who gave his occupation as a farmer.

Both of the men were brought to the county jail here. Prosecutor J. K. Sawyers said he would file first degree murder charges against Suter, Boettly, who was with Suter at the time of the shooting, is being held as a material witness.

According to the story which Prosecutor Sawyers declared that the hill-man told, Suter's shack was ransacked a few days ago and a few cans of vegetables were stolen.

Suter went to Tisher's home early today and summoned the young man, whom he accused of stealing the canned goods.

Here, Henry Tisher, the father of the slain man, took up the story. He said he was attracted by the voices of the men which were raised in argument.

"I went to the door," the elder Tisher declared, "to see Suter pull a gun and shoot my son."

Suter, according to the prosecutor, used a .22 caliber revolver. War experience had made the hill-man a perfect shot. One bullet was fired. It penetrated Tisher's heart.

ANNUAL OHIO STATE MEDICAL SESSIONS HELD IN COLUMBUS

Toledo Doctor Wins Golf
Tourney At Convention

COLUMBUS, O., May 13.—The eighty-fourth annual conference of the Ohio State Medical Association was formally opened here today. Attendance is expected to reach the 2,000 mark.

Though the "hone-setters" were engaged in the serious business of the discussion of the new trends in medicine and surgery, the tenth annual golf tournament of the Ohio State Medical Golfers' Association, which was played off yesterday, was being aired.

Dr. H. L. Weaver, of Toledo, was the best golfing doctor in the state. He went around the difficult Columbus Country Club course for a score of 114 for 27 holes. Dr. Carl A. Hyer, of Columbus, was second, with 119 strokes for the course.

At a meeting of the Golfers' Association last night, Dr. H. H. Atcher, of Dayton, was elected president.

Clinics were held at six local hospitals yesterday when 200 patients were put under the knife.

Dr. Robert B. Drury, president of the Columbus Academy of Medicine, called the conference to order this morning when a general session was held. Sectional conferences will be held throughout the afternoon.

CINCINNATI PICKS NEW CITY MANAGER

CINCINNATI, O., May 13.—At a salary of $25,000 a year, Clarence A. Dykstra, of Los Angeles, native Ohioan, today had been appointed as city manager here.

Dykstra, who was head of the personnel division of the water and power department in the Western coast city, succeeded Colonel C. O. Sherill, who resigned the post to accept a vice-presidency in a large wholesale grocery concern.

The Los Angeles man was formerly an instructor at Ohio State University and the University of Kansas.

DEAF MAN FAILS TO HEAR TRAIN; DIES

ZANESVILLE, O., May 13.—The deafness of Ira Hutton, 79, today is held to be responsible for his death. The man was run down and killed by a fast Pennsylvania passenger train on the tracks in front of his home five miles north of here yesterday.

Hutton, who was returning from hunting, was deaf and it is believed he failed to hear the approaching train.

STATE-WIDE MAN-HUNT ON FOR CHILD'S KIDNAPER - SLAYER

DES MOINES, Ia., May 13.—The desolate bottoms of Four Mile Creek today continued to hold the mystery of 9-year-old Evelyn Lee's murder as the state-wide man-hunt for the child's slayer proved unavailing. The search continued throughout the night.

Abducted from near her home Saturday night, the child's body was found late yesterday in the wooded creek bottom on the outskirts of the city. She had been criminally assaulted and then choked to death, according to police.

Detectives directing the search for the slayers described the murder as the work of a fiend or a demented person.

Efforts of state, city and county authorities to uncover a clue to the identity of the killer have thus far proved unavailing. Bloodhounds employed yesterday failed

PRESIDENT'S TRIP AROUSSES INTEREST FROM POLITICIANS

Expect Accounting Of Stewardship On Western Jaunt

WASHINGTON, May 13.—An announcement that President Hoover will leave Washington late this summer for a swing around the circle of the west has aroused deep interest among the politicians of Capitol Hill.

Mr. Hoover plans to leave Washington in August. At that time he will have completed a little more than one-third of his term, with the off-year election just a few months ahead.

The politicians will be surprised if Mr. Hoover does not take advantage of the occasion to render something in the nature of an accounting of his stewardship on the trip.

There is already piling up on his desk a large batch of invitations to make addresses at various points along the westward trail. Civic organizations are flooding the White House with requests for visits and speeches, and by the time he sets forth there scarcely will be a city of any consequence in the west but has its bid in for a speech.

By that time, too, congress will have adjourned; the big controversial Smoot-Hawley tariff bill will be an accomplished fact, for good or ill; the London naval treaty may have been ratified; and a start made on the prohibition reform upon which Mr. Hoover has laid so much stress.

The time and the situation combine ideally to afford a president an opportunity to review the accomplishments of his administration at a significant mile-post.

President Hoover has stuck closer to Washington during the first fifteen months of his administration than almost any president in recent history. Save for a few days trip into the middle West, to Detroit, Louisville and Cincinnati, last fall, Mr. Hoover has not ventured far away from the capital.

He has had congress, and a recalcitrant congress at that, on his hands almost continuously since his inauguration. No effort is made to conceal the fact that disquieting political reports have reached Washington in increasing volume lately concerning the popularity of the administration "out in the country."

The business recession that followed successive crashes in the stock market last fall; the resentment of some sections of business in the middle West over the federal farm board's policies; the growing dissatisfaction with prohibition conditions, as disclosed in straw polls; the sharp division of opinion as to the benefits of the highest tariff bill since the famous Payne-Aldrich measure—all these and lesser issues have combined to make Republican leaders exceedingly bullish about the forthcoming November elections.

Mr. Hoover's decision to make a leisurely swing about the West is a natural development of the situation. Ostensibly, he will be going West to inspect the national park development. The president undoubtedly is interested in the national parks, but he is more interested in the state of the nation as it affects his administration at Washington.

to pick up a definite trail in the vicinity of where the body was found by two men picking flowers.

Neither could police find trace of a small roadster in which the girl was reported to have been seen struggling with two men last Saturday. Fresh tracks left by the tires of an automobile were found near the body.

One suspect who gave the name of Joe Kavich, of Centerville, Ia., was held after he was taken in custody last night near a bridge where the body was tossed into a clump of bushes. It is believed he may be able to give some clue as to the slayer's appearance.

Police are searching for a man who is reported to have been responsible for several attacks on schoolgirls here recently.

Fingerprint experts have examined the girl's body for marks left by the killer.

BLACKHAND IS SEEN IN BLAST

Two Families Escape
Injuries

NEW LEXINGTON, O., May 13.—Blackhand warfare broke out in "Sunnyside," New Lexington's foreign colony, early today, when a combination grocery store and residence and another home were bombed with dynamite.

The families of Tony Markete and John Larkey, the victims, narrowly escaped injury.

One dynamite bomb was thrown on the porch of the Markete grocery. The front end of the building was seriously wrecked. Members of the family, who were asleep in upstairs rooms, escaped unhurt.

Another charge of the explosive damaged the home of John Larkey. His family escaped by also being asleep in the upstairs rooms.

It is reported that both families have been receiving blackhand and extortion letters. Sheriff Clifford Wilson is conducting an investigation.

JOBLESS WOMEN ON RAMPAGE IN WARSAW

WARSAW, May 13.—Several hundred unemployed women staged a four-hour demonstration at Lodz today, in the course of which they took the city hall by storm and demolished the interior furnishings.

Lodz police, acting upon orders to avoid violence of any sort in dealing with the women, finally evacuated the demonstrators from the city hall by carrying the women out individually, many of them kicking and screaming their protests.

How Army's Skilled Horsemen Perform

Those who lost were Louise Fordyce, Youngstown, O., Peggy Stifel, Buffalo and Fritz Stifel, Wheeling, W. Va. Miss Fordyce represented perhaps the first major defeat in the American ranks since the start of the tournament.

She was beaten, 1 up, by Miss Howe, of England, while Mrs. Payne dropped in three birdies to win from Miss Stifel, 4 and 2, and Miss Diana Fishwick, one of the ranking Britons, simply was too good for Miss Wattles. The latter lost 7 and 5. A fourth American defeat was scored against Mrs. Grace Lenihan, Los Angeles, who lost to Mrs. Garnham, 2 and 1.

AIRMAN STARTS ON RECORD ATTEMPT

LOS ANGELES, May 13.—In quest of a trans-continental speed record, Colonel Roscoe Turner hopped off from here today at 1 a. m. (Pacific Coast Standard time) for New York.

Turner expects to land in New York within fourteen hours of his takeoff and break the record recently established by Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and his wife.

Turner, flying a low-wing monoplane of a model recently popularized for speedy air transport by Lindbergh, planned to make a stop at Wichita, Kansas, for refueling.

AMERICANS ROLL UP MORE VICTORIES IN WOMEN'S GOLF MEET

Only Three Defeats Are Sustained At Hands
Of British

FORMBY, England, May 13.—The American eagle screamed again today, fiercely and effectively, during the play for the British women's golf championship, four invaders—Glenna Collett, Virginia Van Wie, Mrs. Leo Federman and Mrs. Stewart Hanley—crashing through to the fourth round and another quarter—Helen Hicks, Maureen Orcutt, Edith Quier and Mrs. O. S. Hill—surviving into the third.

It was perhaps the most impressive day, from the standpoint of actual significance, that American golf for women has ever sponsored.

Three defeats alone were sustained and, in these, the real stars of the invasion had no part. In fact, no American who has passed out of the championship to date has been regarded as a potential threat to the title.

Those who lost were Louise Fordyce, Youngstown, O., Peggy Stifel, Buffalo and Fritz Stifel, Wheeling, W. Va. Miss Fordyce represented perhaps the first major defeat in the American ranks since the start of the tournament.

She was beaten, 1 up, by Miss Howe, of England, while Mrs. Payne dropped in three birdies to win from Miss Stifel, 4 and 2, and Miss Diana Fishwick, one of the ranking Britons, simply was too good for Miss Wattles. The latter lost 7 and 5. A fourth American defeat was scored against Mrs. Grace Lenihan, Los Angeles, who lost to Mrs. Garnham, 2 and 1.

The seaplane, especially built for the newly-inaugurated service, brought a load of 300 pounds of mail.

Searchlights had been kept on for several hours before dawn to direct Mermoz if he should reach the vicinity earlier than expected.

CLEVELAND POLICE BAN SLOT MACHINES AFTER COURT ORDER

Effort To Enjoin Interference Is Lost In Court

CLEVELAND, O., May 13.—A vigorous drive to rid the city of all slot machines was begun by police here today following a court ruling which branded the devices as gambling schemes.

Judge Fred H. Wolf, sitting in common pleas court late yesterday, dismissed a suit in which Walter Mattias, slot machine distributor, sought to enjoin police from interference with, seizure and destruction of slot machines owned by him.

Judge Wolf declared that slot machines and other such devices are gambling machines whether they are used for actual profit in cash or trade to customers.

Answering the contention that the machines are "amusement devices," Judge Wolf commented that since some people gain amusement by playing the machines, they were gambling on the amount of amusement that could be derived every time they inserted a coin.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

DEVELOP THE GOOD — Brethren, be not children in understanding; howbeit in malice be ye children, but in understanding be men.—1 Cor. 14:20.

A HELPING HAND

An organization with the long name of the society for the Distribution of Useful Knowledge Among Immigrants has been operating for the past five years, and is doing fine work in 23 states. It sends out circulars on such subjects as science, education, economics, hygiene, etc., and distributes magazines and textbooks. We can all help a little in this way.

The desire of many of the aliens who have settled in Ohio to learn American speech and ways, is very pathetic. After the old saying, they feel like a cat in a strange garret. They may be intelligent folks in their home countries, but in America they can't express their ideas, or show what they know, or get credit for what they are.

They must expect to put in solid work learning our language. But they need to have information given them in simplified form, so that they can grasp it with what little English they have. Every time we help such a one acquire such knowledge, he becomes a more productive worker and useful citizen.

TARIFF VETO?

The uncompromising attitude of the senate toward the points of difference with respect to provisions of the tariff bill which have arisen between it and the house of representatives, probably should have been anticipated. The senate does not like Mr. Hoover, who has the support of the house, and those members that are up for re-election this year are concerned only with doing what will pass muster with their immediate constituencies. They do not have to bother about the fate of the senate as a whole, because the majority of the personnel holds over. And that is as far as most of them see or care.

Unfortunately, two important, even vital points are involved in the controversy, the export debenture and flexible tariff provisions. The first has been cut out by the house, the second has been retained in spite of the hostility of the senate, and matters ought so to stand according to every consideration of common sense and good judgment. It will be better to keep the present tariff law than it will be to get a new one built as the senate seems determined to have it built; and in case the house finally gives in and lets the body at the other end of the capitol building have its way, an executive veto will be quite justified.

RELATIONS EXPLAINED

Sir Esme Howard, who recently retired from the British embassy in Washington, explains the latter day improvement in Anglo-American relations by saying that "Americans have discovered that George V is on the throne and not George III." There is something to that.

At the same time, we suspect that Sir Esme's own countrymen have done a little discovering. The animosities engendered by the War of Independence were not confined to this country. They burned in England. They were carried to Canada by the Tories shipped "to hell or Halifax." Time has softened them.

While they have been discovering that George III is no longer on the throne, Americans have also been discovering that his successors no longer impress their seamen or attempt to break up the Union by giving aid and comfort to its enemies, as was done in the Civil war.

There have been discoveries on both sides of the Atlantic. The most promising of them is that there are two sides to all questions; and that, whatever the rights and wrongs of the past, as far as the future is concerned, Great Britain and the United States have nothing to lose and everything to gain by living on terms of the utmost cordiality.

If the wild flower bandits could be set to work in the grain fields at harvest time the labor question would be pretty well solved for the farmer.

The WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

BIG MONEY

When it was reported that the late Judge Gary got a salary of a million dollars a year from the United States Steel corporation, somebody asked John D. Rockefeller, Sr., whether he thought any man was worth that much a year. John D. said: "No matter what Judge Gary is receiving from U. S. Steel, we would gladly pay him more."

Will Hays, who gets something like $150,000 a year from the Motion Picture Producers' association, is worth so much to the producers that recently they gave him a new contract and raised his salary. Well, the big money is to be had, but you have to be worth a lot to the group that pays you. You may be worth it in hard work or in reputation or in something that only you and your personality have to give.

Somebody will tell you that a radio star or a picture star or a writing star is not worth a thousand or five thousand a week. Well, ask the man who pays you. You are pretty sure to find that he is not especially charitable. He is getting his money's worth or thinks he is. And if he thinks he is, he is.

THE GLORY

Hugh Black, wise teacher and preacher, tells us what is the best thing in life. Who knows? Perhaps he is quite right. "To be a strong hand in the dark to another in the time of need, to be a cup of strength to a human soul in a crisis of weakness, is to know the glory of life."

"THE WAY OF ECKEN"

In the "They Way of Ecken," by the Virginia novelist, James Branch Cabell, one reads this: "Youth is credulous in many matters, but upon one single issue youth stays as iron and granite: youth does not ever believe that life serves well enough just as it stands. To believe that such is just possibly the case remains the attested hall-mark of middle life."

THE TEST OF THE YEARS

Is not the real test of age our attitude toward life? When we find ourselves ready to accept things as they are, however bad we really think them, we are old. When we say that the effort to do better is too inconvenient and apparently not worth while, we are old. When we say government is bad and getting worse and we can't do anything about it, we are getting old. The test of the years, instead, is acceptance—acceptance of the bad along with the good.

Frankly, the writer of this column believes a great deal more in acceptance than many others. We all rail about so many matters that after all are not going to be helped. But, acceptance of conditions which any intelligent, fairly YOUTHFUL person can see might easily be changed—that is not adjustment or reasonable resignation. That is just laziness—and age.

How much fertilizer is there produced in the United States in a year?

The production of fertilizer in the United States was more than 7,800,000 short tons in 1927, and more than 8,000,000 short tons in 1928. This was valued at more than $200,000,000.

Has any estimate been made as to the cost of crime in the United States?

The Baumes commission of New York estimated that general crime, as distinguished from financial crime, costs $13,000,000,000 a year.

Civilization

What are the five great steps in civilization?

According to Dr. Will Durant, the five great steps of civilization are indicated by the following stages: Speech, fire and light; the conquest of the animal; the passage of man from the hunting to the agricultural stage; social organization; the moral sense, the sense of beauty, science, writing printing and education.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK.—The ultimate in concentrated stage plays has arrived. It is "Cortez," and the cast consists of one woman and a telephone. At the President Theatre Miss Ella Shelley is appearing in a full-length play all by herself without making it particularly unbearable.

By means of the telephone Miss Shelley creates the illusion that there are nine other characters trying to walk on the stage, but she is keeping them back. You think very minute they are going to appear but they never do.

AN IDEAL REALIZED

When in 1908 Joseph Pulitzer, blind publishing genius of the New York World, decided to leave in his will a sum of money providing each year for the award of prizes for feats of Journalism and letters, he called Charles Macauley, cartoonist of the World, aboard the yacht Liberty and asked him whether he thought cartoonists should be included in the proposed awards.

He got an affirmative answer and 22 years later, Macauley has won the prize he helped to create. By the time this column of kindness is read, the award will have been made to Mr. Macauley, now of the Brooklyn Eagle, for the best cartoon appearing during 1929.

Macauley for years has been a powerful cartoonist. He was the favorite of Woodrow Wilson and President McKinley was his godfather. Always he has been associated with big men. To my mind his most touching cartoon was that published in the New York World the day after Mayor Gaynor's death.

It was just a marble shaft with the words: "I Have Been Mayor."

THE WALLS OF JERICO

PROGRESSIVES WOULD PLACE JUDICIARY ON SAME BASIS AS TO TENURE OF OFFICE AS APPLIES TO COMPTROLLER GENERAL

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—J. Raymond McCarll holds office on the same basis that progressive sentiment in the senate favors for justices of the U. S. supreme court.

That is to say, he was named for an unusually long term but at its end he will not be eligible to reappointment.

If McCarll is a fair sample of what Uncle Sam can get in the way of public servants on those conditions, it would pay him to expand the system; but he probably couldn't. Comptroller General McCarlls are scarce enough to class as pure accidents.

A decade ago, when congress created the comptroller generalship, it saw the importance of making the job's incumbent as independent of any human influence as Robinson Crusoe.

His stunt is to collect all of Uncle Sam's bills and pass on all bills presented against him.

A bill collector seldom is popular. Still less so is a cashier whose task is to turn down swindle sheets running from a few cents apiece into the millions of dollars, to a 10-figure total annually.

Is such a functionary apt to be subjected to tremendous pressure by mighty powerful interests quite frequently—not to push some government claim too hard or not to be over-finely about jotting down his "o. k." on one document or another that means lot to people it may be actually dangerous to antagonize.

Oh boy! There's no superlative adequate to describe it. Congress foresaw this. To protect the contemplated comptroller, it made him removal-proof (except by impeachment) for a 15-year term, allowed him a $10,000 annual salary and then fearfully presumed having been banished from his breast, to extinguish hope also prescribed a single term as his maximum limit.

Somewhat McCarll was talked into accepting this berth—the only one of its kind in the country, and McCarll is the only man who ever held it; his one term has not expired yet. At its end, out he will go, ineligible to reappointment—with no retirement pay either.

In the nature of things it is the most thankless job on earth. Already McCarll has saved the government ten times more money than anyone in history—and made somebody howl with rage for every dollar of it. Fifteen years of this!—and then oblivion.

The point is, however—it is widely urged that first class lawyers could not be found to become federal judges for less than life terms. If lawyers are faulty, any time Uncle Sam finds as competent a judge as he did an accountant, when J. Raymond McCarll went to work for him—on a 15-year basis, with no retirement allowance—he will have good grounds on which to congratulate himself.

At any rate, the comparison is interesting—considering recent proposed changes in the judiciary. Like congress, in creating the comptroller generalship, the "founding fathers" aimed to make the federal bench independent—and went congress one better by according life tenure to the judges. They thought the supreme court to act as a hard-set brake on governmental change and it works that way.

This is what irks the present senate progressives. They are not the first progressives it has irked. Among others, it irked President Roosevelt so much that he proposed some ballot-box method of reversing supreme court decisions.

Today's progressives think they would be satisfied if the brake's grip could be loosened temporarily, occasionally; but that never occurs. This is a conservative country most of the time. Consequently most of the supreme judges are conservatively chosen. Now and then a progressive is named, but not often enough to overcome the conservative majority.

The progressives might have a progressive president and congress, and still they would have a conservative supreme court handicapping them; and before they would get it made over, probably the conservatives would be back in power, presidentially and congressionally.

Hence the progressive exasperation over President Hoover's supreme court appointments. He evidently is going to have five or six vacancies to fill; they want him to select progressives and he seems determined to name conservatives.

Nevertheless, bucking his nominations cannot accomplish much but embarrass him. He can keep on appointing conservatives as long as the progressives can keep on fighting their confirmation.

Thus the progressive leadership has about decided on a campaign to abolish life tenure for the federal judiciary, from top to bottom. Limited terms would force a swifter turnover—or at least an opportunity for it. Ineligibility to reappointment (but on liberal retirement pay) would do the rest.

Of course a constitutional amendment would be required. The most sanguine do not anticipate a change without a long period of agitation, but that is what the present series of supreme court contests promises to develop into. Meantime Comptroller General McCarll holds the only sample job, somewhat on the suggested model, in existence.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

Epilepsy

MISS B.: It was not in my column that you read directions for exercise and diet in epilepsy. I did say that there was a new diet, known as the ketogenic diet, high in fats and low in starches and sugars, which had proved of benefit in many cases. This diet, however, has to be worked out very carefully for the individual case by the physician in charge, in conjunction with a dietitian—unless he knows dietetics himself—so that the vitamins and mineral elements and proteins will be taken care of.

I suggested that if the physician in charge of the case did not know of this diet, he write to the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., and they would send him a description of it. (They would not send it to anyone but a physician, so it would be useless for the patient himself to write.)

Pasting has also been proved to be of benefit in epilepsy, but fasting, as well as this ketogenic diet, should be supervised by a physician.

Yes, there are types of epilepsy that are inherited; other types that are due to chronic irritation of sort, or chronic poisoning, and might not be inherited, and yours may be a case of that type—of course I cannot tell. I am sorry I can't help you more, Miss B.

"Dear Doctor: We are a young married couple, without children. My husband's father and mother are deaf mutes. My husband is in good health, hears and speaks perfectly, while I also am in good health, having good hearing and speech. Do you think that our children would be mutes? We both wish for children, but feel uneasy. MRS. V."

Your husband's having normal hearing is another case showing that deafness is not always transmitted. However, if it doesn't come out in the first generation, it may in the next. (If the mother's deafness was the result of disease, it is not the true inheritable type. The father's was, probably.)

The fact that you are normal and have no blood relation would make the chance of your children's being deaf mutes, much less. Where there is deafness in the family, the marriage of blood relations (even though they be normal themselves) is to be strongly discouraged, so far as having children is concerned; for the children may be deaf mutes.

If you know a doctor or specialist in eugenics and heredity, it would be wise to visit him. If you decide you shouldn't have children on account of the possibility of the transmission of the defect, do adopt two or three. You'll find you will love them just as much as you would your own. There are agencies in every large town that will put you in touch with orphan asylums and baby homes where there are homeless children.

Robert: Send for our article on the Care of the Hair and Scalp. Remember that the condition of the hair depends upon the general health. Better have a physician check-up. Ask also for our article on the Balanced Diet. See column rules.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Peters cannot diagnose nor give personal advice. Your questions, if of general interest, will be answered in the column in their turn. Requests for articles or pamphlets on hand must be accompanied by a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope, plus the cost of printing and handling for each article wanted, two cents in coin; for each pamphlet ten cents in coin. The pamphlets are Reducing and Gaining, Hygiene of Women, Kidney and Bladder Disorders. Address Dr. Peters in care of this paper. Write legibly and not over 200 words.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"Dear Virginia Lee: I am a constant reader of your column. I think you give good advice, and I want some. I have been going with a fellow for three years. I am engaged to him. I am uncertain of him, though. He is very jealous and gets angry if I talk to another fellow, but I am not sure that he really cares for me or not.

"Virginia, his people have never seen me nor I them, yet they dislike me and say any girl as popular as I am can't be decent. How can I change their opinion of me? Or do you think I should quit this fellow?"

You say the boy's friends' parents say this about you, Lola? I don't see how you can very well change their opinion if you don't meet them. Couldn't it be arranged? Seems as if after going with a chap for three years you should meet his folks, unless they live at a distance.

If they really dislike you and you are not sure that he loves you, there is not much chance of happiness for you in continuing the engagement, is there? So better break it. You don't even say that you love him.

"Dear Virginia Lee: Oh, Virginia, how your column has helped some of us. If it is not asking too much, will you please let me say something to those girls who have lost their sweethearts? "Brace up, girls, I too, have lost my lover, but an inspiration is what helps me along. He is my inspiration. In everything I do I keep him in mind, pretending I'm doing it for him. Little does he know that I'm madly in love with him.

"Girls, use your pride. Don't fall all over the boys and they will think more of you. Keep your sunny side up and bear it out, even though it be hard. SMILES."

The young man certainly should be flattered if he ever finds out you are using him for an inspiration, Smiles, dear. And I hope it would make him "watch his step," so that he would never disappoint you. Thank you Smiles, and I hope your love will be returned in time.

JANE: So the boy friend went out with another girl while you were away and lied to you about it, did he? Very foolish of him, as well as deceitful. He might have known that you would find out and be hurt.

He might have been lonely, and that was the reason he did it, or he might have been run in on a "double date," or he might have liked the girl. It doesn't matter what the reason, he should have told you about it when you asked.

Give him plenty of freedom, I say, and I know that you will impress upon him as much as you say my advice on other people's problems does. I can't tell you whether he loves you or not, but see no reason for you to doubt his words, if they are backed by his actions.

How To Achieve Beauty

By GLAYS GLAD

The summer styles in hats are going to mean a lot to us in hair health. Last year's predilection for the felt hats even in the blistering hot weather, was the reason why many women found their hair, the past winter, dull and lifeless, and difficult to get back to its glossy, silken appearance.

Some of the new hats are so flimsy that they easily allow the sun and air to penetrate to the scalp. Of course, the most beneficial summer for our hair was that season a few years ago when old and young, men and women, discarded hats entirely, even the main thoroughfares of New York seeing a large quota of bare-headed persons.

If, as a result of last summer's and this winter's tight-hat rads, your hair has lost its luster and is dry and lifeless, begin now to give your scalp plenty of oil treatments. Of course you should have done so all winter, but the cold months are generally sluggish months, and many neglect themselves during this period.

You can take the oil treatments at home if you cannot afford to have them done in a beauty parlor. At least once a week you should have such a treatment, if your hair is not in perfect condition.

First, shampoo the hair thoroughly, and then dry it. Next, heat a bit of olive oil or odorless and tasteless castor oil, and apply the oil to the scalp with the tips of the fingers. Wrap your head in a soft towel, and allow the oil to remain on over night. In the morning give your hair another shampoo, being careful to remove all the oil. The castor oil is more

Arms and Bust
M. J. Olson: Exercises involving the muscles of the arms and bust will help to develop these portions of your body. Also massage of warmed cocoa butter will help to fatten the tissues.

Hair Dyeing
Mrs. Palmer: For good results, you should have your hair dyed at a reliable shop. But once you begin this practice it means continual trips to the beauty parlor. Lanolin is excellent for a dry, chapped scalp.

Scalp Disease
Worried: If you continue to have scales on your head, I would advise you to consult a hair specialist.

NATIONAL CIRCUIT STARTED WITH FAST CONTEST ON MONDAY

Seventh Frame Rally
Enables Paints Snatch Victory

Putting over a five-run rally in the lucky seventh inning, the Xenia Paints re-opened the Xenia softball season by defeating the Criterion nine, 12 to 8 in the opening National League game at Cox Athletic Field Monday night.

The victory was a repetition of an early season triumph of the Paints over the Criterion and their margin was just about the same as in the previous contest.

For the first six innings it was touch and go. The Criterion was never in the lead but it was never far behind and twice came from the rear to even the score. In the seventh frame the Paints won the ball game by bunting three hits with a walk and error to score five runs.

Herman Wells, Criterion pitcher, was reached for fifteen hits of varying proportions but had only three runs in the first, fifth and seventh, when the Paints did all the run-making. Jacobs, on the firing line for the Paints, released eleven hits but kept them well scattered.

Milburn, the Paints' right fielder, had a field day at the plate, with two triples, a double and a single in five times at bat. Bice, shortstop, smacked out a double and the only home run of the game. The Criterion hitting was about evenly divided.

The Xenia Country Club Caddies and Company L. will inaugurate the American League schedule Tuesday night. Box score:

WEST JEFFERSON DOG RACING TRACK TO OPEN SATURDAY

A scheduled twenty-five day spring meeting of dog racing will be inaugurated at West Jefferson, O., Saturday night under auspices of the West Jefferson Kennel Club, Ltd.

Approximately 250 greyhounds are quartered at the track and racing will be held every night except Sundays, the program starting at 8:15 o'clock. Ten races are scheduled for Saturday nights with cards of nine races on other week days.

Extensive improvements have been made at the track in preparation for the spring meeting, the latest innovation being a "jenney pit." After weighing in at 6:30 p. m. the dogs are placed in the pit where they are closely guarded until just before their time to race when they are taken to the paddock.

Introduction of the "jenney pit" is believed to have virtually eliminated the possibility of "fixed" races because the greyhounds are kept isolated from everyone, including the owners.

DITTICISMS

Ed Barrow of the Yankees says there never will be another player like Ruth, able to draw $50,000 a year. What he probably means is there will never be another club owner able to pay it.

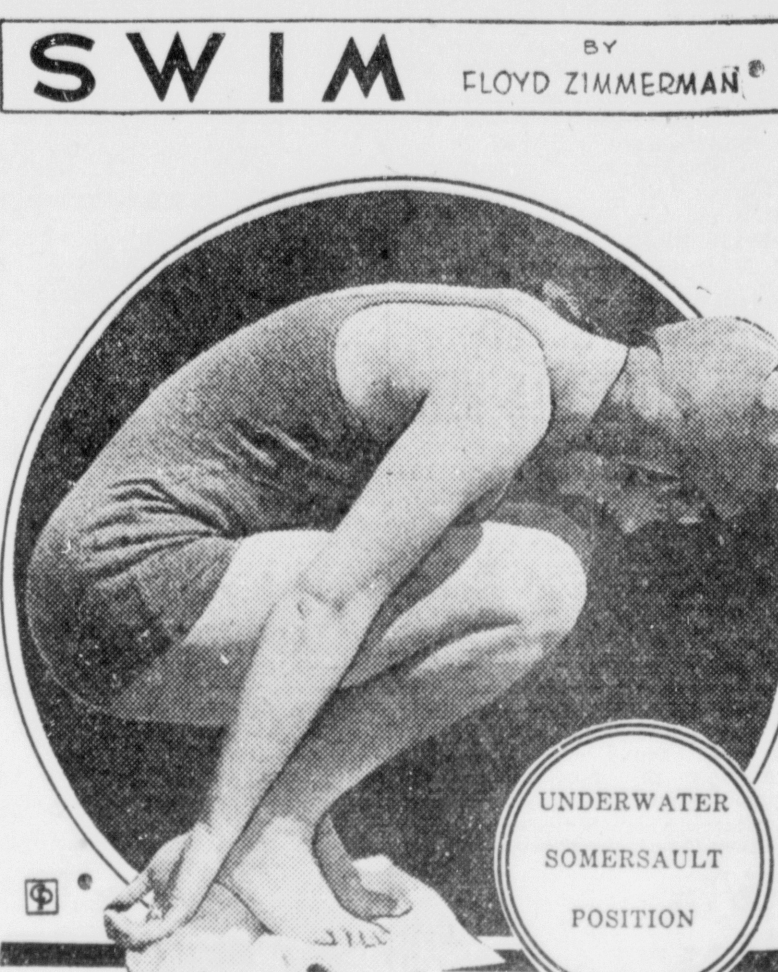

This Kentucky Derby must be red hot. Chain Lightning, an entry, is rated but a small chance to win.

Moron Mike, who sells volts by the bottle, reports that in his first try at golf he went around the tees in even fours. Three strikes and a bunt.

Some of these new 1930 sport model ball clubs have turned out to be all rumble seat with the whole team parked in it going nowhere at top speed.

No one has discovered, after weeks of investigation, just who the world's heavyweight wrestling champion is, though a confession is expected soon.

Night baseball will prove exceptionally welcome to the umpires who, after wrong decisions, may now be able to disguise themselves as shadows.

LESSON TWO
Learning to Submerge

To those who desire to learn swimming without an instructor, I say first accustom yourselves to the water.

Go in first to the knees; then to the waist; finally to your neck. Then stoop until you are entirely submerged. Remain under water at first only a second until you gradually become accustomed to remaining under the surface.

The next move to make is to take your feet off the bottom, put them out behind you, draw your head down through the water toward your feet and you will find that your feet are touching bottom again and you have turned a somersault in the water.

The above illustration shows how one appears in turning this somersault. Just take a natural breath, exhale through the mouth, and, above all, have confidence.

Factors of Personal Service in Stock Fire Insurance

The Agent:

Stock Fire Insurance companies have personal representatives in almost every city, town and hamlet in this country.

In no other business does the agent mean so much—in no other field is the relation of the agent with his principal more intimate.

These thousands of local agents, entrusted with great authority—qualified and equipped to render intelligent insurance service—make available to every American community the many helpful activities of the Stock Fire Insurance business.

The Underwriter:

On the judgment and experience of the underwriter, contracts for insurance protection are accepted or rejected. The public and the insurance companies are jointly interested in preventing unwarranted or illegitimate loss payments. By considering individual responsibility, and using the vast amount of reliable information by which risks are judged, the underwriter serves the public by avoiding improper losses.

The Inspector:

Here is "the watchman in the tower". He is alert—intent upon discovering hazards which threaten the destruction of life and property and add to the cost of insurance. From his findings you may obtain sound advice, based upon knowledge of construction, fire prevention, fire fighting methods, hazards of occupancy and processes, and other conditions which go to make property safe or unsafe.

The Adjuster:

This man follows disaster. Owing to the disturbed condition of the policy-holder at the moment, his task is difficult. But his purpose is to settle each legitimate claim in keeping with the rights of the interested parties. Less than one percent of his adjustments—with nearly a million reports of losses each year—are followed by litigation; a fine tribute to his fairness and ability.</

FOUR XENIA PUPILS WIN STATE AWARDS; FRANK WOLF NAMED

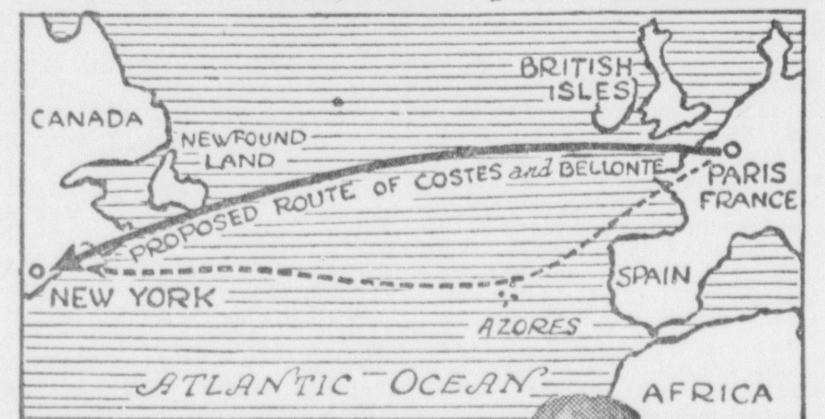

Through an oversight on the part of the state department of education, the name of Frank J. Wolf, freshman at Xenia Central High School, was inadvertently omitted from the list of local students who were notified to report at Columbus at the statehouse last Saturday morning to receive certificates of award in recognition of high attainments in the recent district scholarship held at Miami University.

Wolf, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wolf, New Burlington Pike, won first place in Latin I at the district contest held May 3 and should have been present at Columbus along with three other Xenia Central students, Ralph Bickling, Marion Cox and John Maxwell, who were given awards. The mistake has since been rectified. Central High officials announce, with the result Wolf has been placed fourth in the state. Ellen Monrad, of Portsmouth, O., won first place and Margaret Younds, of St. Marys, and Charles Tazert, of Massillon, tied for second place, with the Central High freshman ranking next.

A., who delivered a talk at a combined assembly of the student bodies of Xenia Central junior and senior high school in Jean B. Elwell Auditorium Monday morning. In a sportsman it's Fair Play in a cigarette it's Taste

POPULARITY IN A SPORTSMAN rests first of all on fair play; in a cigarette on better taste.

CHESTERFIELD'S POPULARITY is fairly won with finer tobaccos, blended and cross-blended to give greater delicacy and richer fragrance.

IT TAKES TIME and is costly to make cigarettes the Chesterfield way, but no other way arrives so surely, so completely at what you want most... "TASTE above everything"

We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield cigarettes are of finer quality and hence of better taste than in any other cigarette at the price. LIGGETT & MYERS TOBACCO CO.

DAD'S GIRL

By Edna Robb Webster

Watch For Her

Beginning Saturday, May 17

SHE EXPECTED A MILLION! Clara Dee Forester, the motherless, pampered, beautiful product of a modern boarding school life of idle extravagance scarcely knew her father, who had indulged her with his immense wealth, not wisely, but too well, in his effort to provide her with the "best in life," since the death of her young mother whom he idolized.

Dad told his best friend: "My daughter's eyes tell me frankly that I'm a back number. I've given her, lavishly, everything that my money could buy. I've wondered what she or any of her friends would do if they were put on their own resources, like thousands of girls in our offices and shops."

"And to my beloved daughter, I bequeath the sum of one dollar"—Clara Dee heard the will. That's really where the story begins. Read how Clara Dee measures up to the ideals of her father.

There is tremendous love interest through the story—you will meet Winfield Baxter, in his strategic attempts to win Clara Dee whom he loves at first sight, Ivan Moreau, an artist, and Don Evans, an aggressive young college graduate. You will like "Dad's Girl!"

Why You Should Build Your Home This Spring

The Cost of Materials and Equipment is Lower Than in the Past Ten Years

By CHESLA C. SHERLOCK

I have good news. You can build that home you have been dreaming about all these months—perhaps years. There is no longer any need to put it off. The long-hoped-for time when costs, prices and "conditions" are right has arrived.

Building materials are down. The price of equipment is down. Labor is about on a level with the mean average for the past six years, but in the net is lower in cost because of its increased productivity. And more skilled labor is available this spring, at the average prices, than for some time past.

I have even better and more startling news. You can build a house today cheaper than you could have built it during any time in recent years. Everything considered, you can build your home today at less cost than at any time in the past ten years!

But that is not all. Not only at less cost in dollars and cents, but you can get more home per dollar today than you could have purchased for the same dollar at any time during those ten years!

This is not a pipe dream. It is not a sales prospectus for some building contractor. I have merely set out the bare facts, based upon long and patient investigation in recent weeks. I have consulted the great statistics-gathering organizations who keep the records, week in and week out, in the building industry. I have gone to the responsible leaders in each and every division of the building industry for their opinions. They were asked for the facts upon which they based those opinions. And when these opinions and these facts were carefully and systematically sifted down, the net result is found in the statements I have set out above.

Startling? Certainly, it is. But the best part of it is that it isn't merely startling. It is also true. And it goes to prove a rather famous old adage which went to the effect that "it is an ill wind that blows nobody good." The ill wind I have in mind was the famous bull market on Wall Street which culminated in the headaches in October and November of last year.

It may seem a long way around to connect the stock-market break with the favorable situation obtaining in the residential building field in this month of March, 1930. But let us see.

The postwar building boom reached its peak in 1925. Houses, apartments and flats had by that time caught up with our needs. In some localities we were over-built. There came a recession, a flattening out of the residential curve on the statistical charts. We slowed down slightly.

In 1929, residential construction declined 20 per cent below the preceding four years' average. B. L. Johnson, editor of The American Builder, says: "The main cause of this falling off in home building was not lack of demand, but difficulty in financing. All the money was going into the stock market, leaving the home—that soundest of all investments—to suffer."

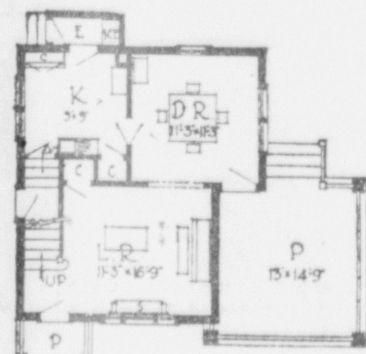

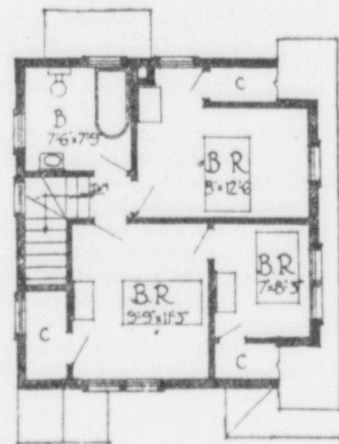

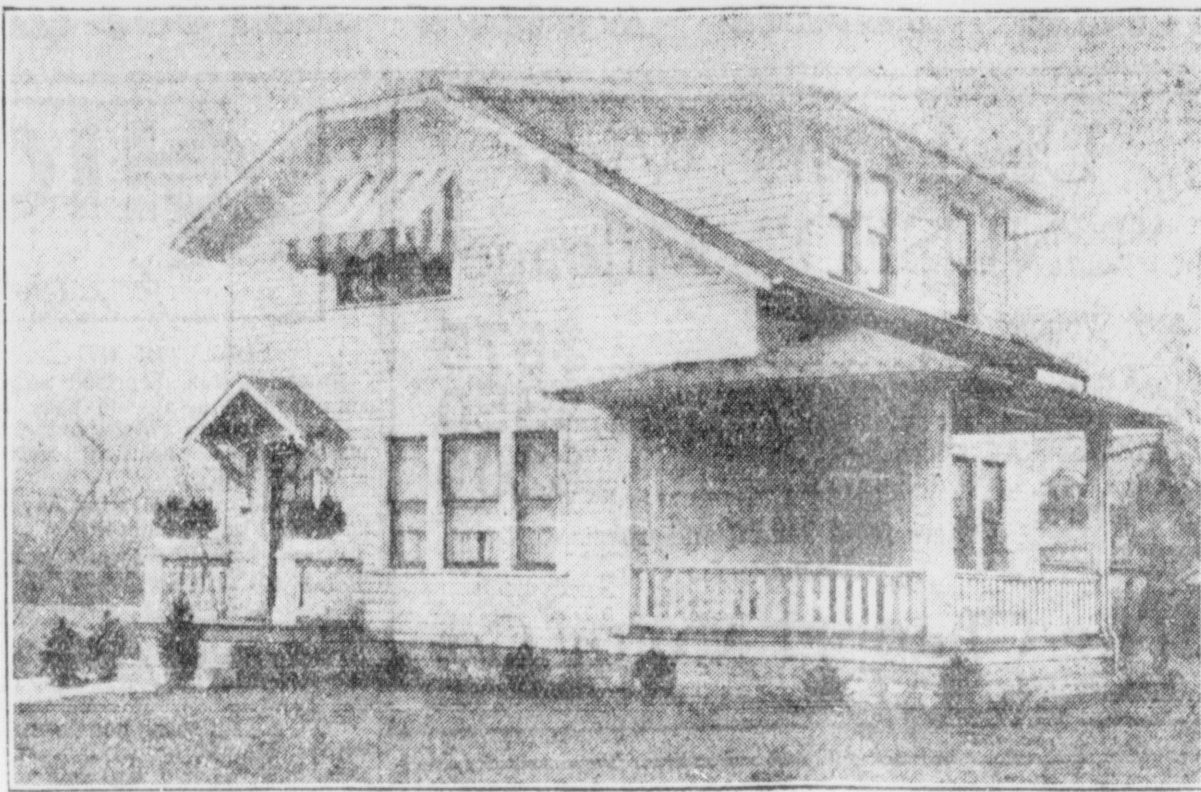

And so the quick recession in the residential construction last year pulled the entire building industry down to a net loss of 8 per cent below the preceding four years' average.

With these factors in mind, we can now understand some of the reasons why the liquidation of the stock-market-inflated values will help you build your home at less cost today.

Take materials. Dr. Wilson Compton, of the National Lumber Manufacturers Association, says: "We are in a position to assure you that as the situation now stands lumber for residential building, both outside and inside, is considerably lower than it has been for the past six years."

Broadly speaking, you can authoritatively assert that the lumber dollar will buy more and better lumber—considering both factors together—than at any time since 1922.

The low cost of lumber at the present time, speaking frankly, is due to the overproduction characteristic of a widely spread industry composed of many units. Naturally, the industry is trying to correct this situation, but while it lasts, there can be no doubt that builders have a real opportunity.

One of the most popular designs in stock plan services, is the "Rosedale" shown herewith.

This compact little house has been built thousands of times throughout the country in the past decade, and appears to be increasing in popularity, according to its designer.

The principal advantages of this plan, are: 1st. Complete cross ventilation, generous window space in all rooms, and dimensions that permit the use of standard size material throughout, which contributes tremendously to economy of construction both from the standpoint of the labor bill and the material bill.

In most localities the "Rosedale" can be built for Fifty-two hundred dollars ($5200.00) to Fifty-eight hundred dollars ($5800.00), depending upon the builder's taste in plumbing, finish, etc.

Complete working drawings, material bill and approximate cost estimates can be obtained from the Real Estate Editor of The Gazette.

Scoville is alleged by police to have confessed that he lured Mrs. Kerr to the deserted theater building through an advertisement for a housekeeper. During an argument about the building, Scoville murdered the woman, according to his alleged confession.

CHAPTER XVI

Suwanee was surprised to get a summons to bring the baby back so soon. Bang's voice on the telephone shook halfway between mirth and relief.

"You old criminal, what have you done with my daughter?"

"Great Scott!" Suwanee laughed. "I just got into the house this minute. Is everything fixed up so soon?"

"Never better. All quiet along the Potomac. I'll come right up to get her."

"Oh, no, I'll bring her down," Suwanee offered quickly. "I always take back what I borrow."

"No," Bang thanked him. "I want to leave the girls by themselves. They're having a little gab fest. There are a few things to explain to you, too, Suwanee. You must think we are all crazy down here."

"Well, it was a bit of a shock. But Elanda was so serious. I couldn't spoil her plans. I knew there was nothing to it."

Suwanee was being gallant. Yet he was burning with an almost feminine curiosity for the details of the matter. Bang went into the bedroom.

"I'm going up to get the baby. Dixie. Meanwhile I hope to goodness you uphold the family honor and clear Elanda's mind of all suspicion. This has been a tough few weeks. I don't want to have to go through with any more theatricals to help save souls."

Elanda sat up and put her arms around him.

"Oh, Bang, you are a sweet old thing! I thought I was saving your happiness."

She laughed hysterically and kissed him on the cheek.

"It-it's too good to be true," Elanda stammered. "Being like this—together again!"

When he had gone after kissing Dixie in the loving shamed-faced way he always kissed her before anybody else, Dixie wiped her eyes.

"And you thought I'd give up a man like that for a Park Avenue skirt hound?"

It was an inelegant expression. But Dixie felt like talking incessantly about Greg Du Pont. It relieved her emotion. Then she grinned and stretched out happily.

"Now we'll dish the dirt. I'll tell you my story first and don't interrupt me."

"I guess both of us were trying to be missionaries. You were acting so silly and so high hat and unlike our old Elanda that I thought I'd have to bring you down to earth. My plan wasn't quite worked out when I bought all the clothes and flirts with the men in the restaurant that night. I knew that man. I remembered him well. He is a Wall Street lawyer and went with one of the girls in Scanties. I wouldn't have talked with a stranger—or danced with him. Even to bring you down to earth. Too risky. I have no desire to dance with a gunman."

"For a few days after that you were more like your old self. But after you got engaged to Greg I knew I had to do something. Oh, Elanda, I know that egg so well! He made a big play for me when I was on the stage—and I knew several terrible women he was mixed up with."

"The very day after you brought him down here he called me and kidded me about being married and asked me for a date. Then he said if I ever felt like stepping out he was the boy to take me. I didn't then, then I'd ever call him."

"But when you got engaged to him—the next day—a tough looking Jane called on me and threatened to kill you if I didn't break the engagement. She meant it, too. He had gone to see her and said it wouldn't make any difference with them, even if he did marry you."

Elanda gasped and began to weep again. Dixie put her arms around her protectively.

"You don't need to cry about it now, Andy. I promised the girl I would try to break it up. She agreed to wait awhile before she killed you both. If I hadn't been so sure he would never be true to you and that he would have broken your heart, I never should have done it."

Dixie stopped with a tearful little laugh.

"Poor old Bang! All those nights you thought I was out with someone else and that he was playing cards with the boys I had him dancing blisters on his old tootsies. I almost ran him ragged."

"When he stayed at home I went to the movies—all dolled up like a church, until I hope I never see an other movie again as long as I live. So dry your little eyes and stop worrying about the domestic troubles of Mr. and Mrs. Bang Durkin. I wouldn't give my poor old Bang up for all the men and all the women in the world. He's my idea of a real sheik."

Elanda smiled tremblingly and told her tale.

"I was so desperate. All you had told me came true and I had to change my songs and sing popular things. That was the worst of all. I thought I'd die. But pretty soon you were keeping me so worried I didn't have time to think about myself."

Dixie nodded, saying:

"That was what I was trying to do. I didn't hope to have it work out so perfectly. You fell for everything, hook, line and sinker. Sometimes I thought you must be plumb dumb that you didn't see through me."

The reaction of the whole affair left both girls so near hysterics that part of the time they clung to each other, laughing, and part of the time weeping.

It seemed ridiculously funny to them finally.

When Bang came back with the baby, Dixie flew to take her from him.

his arms. Andree was sound asleep, and did not wake up while Dixie kissed her, and her happy tears fell on the babe's face.

"Oh, God, help me," she held Andree close. "If anything had happened to her I would have died."

Elanda covered her face with her hands at the sight of Dixie's maternal anxiety and relief. She loved Andree so much that she could understand.

"Oh, it was cruel of me," Elanda bent down and kissed Andree tenderly. "I didn't realize how hurt you would be. I thought I was doing a wonderful thing."

"You were," Bang hastened to reassure her. "I think you and Dixie are about even. I'd call it quits. If you want to start in reforming anybody from now on, take it out on me. I'm a good subject."

The following morning Suwanee paid a little social call on Greg Du Pont.

The Theater

Frank Vreeland tells of how W. Franke Harling found that talking pictures put art on a paying basis. For several years Harling had ambitions to make syncopation aesthetic—in other words to compose jazz operas that would make Wagner look static and stodgy.

He wrote "Deep River," which wasn't appreciated in New York and "A Light from St. Agnes," which did not hit popular taste in the United States or France, from the blunt angle of the box office. At the end of a couple of years of intensive labor, Harling discovered that his efforts to make the American public like jazz on a high-sounding basis, with words and gestures, had resulted in a net return to him of about $1.25 per week.

So Franke gave up and went to Hollywood to compose music for the new talkies. Out there he wrote "Sing, You Sinners" for Nancy Carroll's production of Honey and now the Broadway that declined to recognize Harling as a jazz composer for opera has virtually acclaimed him as a jazz composer for the amplifiers. Which proves that many a prophet is without honor in his own country. Vreeland points out that the moral for ambitious composers is "Synthesize, You Sinners."

Congress has decided not to make an extra appropriation for the installation of talking apparatus aboard the Navy's warships, despite the fact that Congressmen themselves are sometimes heard in audible films. This means the gobs will have to put up with the wash of the waves as the only sound effects for Clara Bow's picture, "True to the Navy." It is reported that the men on some of the ships are planning to finance sound apparatus out of their own pockets. Considering the number of seamen carried on a large battleship, this would not be such a considerable drain on each although it might handicap the boys in their entertainment of the girls in every port for a while.

The Army, on the other hand, is going right ahead with plans to install thirty-five additional posts with talking apparatus, bringing up to sixty the total posts equipped to produce sound pictures. The land forces now have it on the sea-going boys and may print on their recruiting posters, "Join the Army and Hear the World."

Charlie Chaplin's new silent comedy "City Lights" is scheduled to open either at Rivolo or the Rialto in New York soon. It will be interesting to see what reception the public gives Chaplin's silent film after having been on a diet of sound pictures for the last two or three years. If the picture flops, Chaplin will either have to drop out of the films or amend his announcement that he would never make a talking picture. Anyway it will provide an opportunity to see whether the audience has forgotten how to read the titles aloud.

Life Was a Misery

"Before I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was weak and run-down, could not sleep and had troubles which came at my age (forty-three). Life was a misery. Nothing did me any good until I tried the Vegetable Compound. I am on my third bottle and I cannot recommend it too highly. I feel like a new person and I really think I would have been dead if I had not taken it. I think every lady ought to take it at the change."—Mrs. Eunice M. Star Gazing

By RADIE HARRIS

Real name is Lewis Delaney Ofield. Nicknamed "Oakie" during his school days in Oklahoma.

Is Sedalia, Missouri's reason for being on the map. Was added to the census Nov. 12, 1904.

Boyhood ambition was to be the world's champion pole vaulter. Became a "runner" on Wall St., to get in practice.

Was on the first lap to a seat on the exchange when he was invited to appear at a Jewish society benefit. Was the only Gentile in the cast and scored the hit of the evening. Decided to leave Wall St. to Otto Kahn and give Al Jolson a run for his reputation.

Joined the chorus of "Innocent Eyes!" And fell madly in love with a beautiful chorine named Lucille Le Sueur—the present Joan Crawford. Joined the chorus of "Hit the Deck." Later played leading role in screen version. Joined the chorus of "Peggy Anne." And was thrown out for wisecracking during performance.

Crashing Hollywood
Went to Hollywood for the train ride. Met Wesley Ruggles at a party and presented himself as "fresh new talent" for pictures. Ruggles found him so "fresh," signed him to split bee bees at Laura La Plante in "Finders Keepers." Received $100 for his expectorating prowess. Can do it equally as well for nothing.

His grandfather was a Methodist minister and his mother a principal of a school, but that doesn't prevent him from stealing every picture he is in.

Hates the "grand manner" and "smart people." Rides around Hollywood in a "four cylinder Lincoln"—a Ford coupe.

Likes New York better than any place in the world until he returned to it after a three years' absence.

Vows he won't marry until he is too old to know any better. Claims that pictures are enough to worry about without adding a wife. Confesses that Dorothy Mackall is his favorite actress.

Drinks coffee, water and — but hardly ever milk. His favorite menu order is fried chicken and spaghetti.

His best press agent—aside from himself—is his mother. Gets big kick out of press book she is saving for him. Suspects she even goes to bed with scissors and paste.

No Temperament
Is not in the least temperamental or "high hat." Says you can never tell when the office boy may become boss.

Never throws a party but likes to go to them when he can find the time. Recently, Gwen Lee gave a party in his honor. Everyone in Hollywood attended but Jack. He was too busy "pulling a Houdini" by working in three pictures at once.

His wardrobe consists mainly of patent leather shoes, white socks and sweatshirts. Once appeared at a Hollywood premiere in a tuxedo and all his friends wanted to know whether all his sweatshirts were in the laundry.

Has the same ingratiating personality in real life as in "reel" life. Is a very good mixer. You have known him all your life after the first introduction.

LUTHERAN INNER MISSION TO MEET

Among the subjects for discussion will be: "Psychiatry as an Aid to the Church," "Inner Mission Planning and the Survey Method," "Christianizing Human Relationships," and "Casework Evangelism and the Proper Use of Leisure Time."

Prof. Paul H. Heisey, Ph. D., head of the department of Religious Education in Wittenberg College, Springfield, has been assigned by the conference to survey the Lutheran colleges, seminaries, and preparatory schools to determine the place they give to inner missions in their curricula. He will present the results of his efforts at the Columbus meeting.

The Rev. Adrian G. Lebold, pastor of the First Lutheran Church, plans to attend Wednesday and Thursday.
